"OH WHERE HAS MY LIMA BEAN"

This is not a title of a popular song, nor is it an advertisement for a pure food article.

During the Civil war, when the north and south were in deadly conflict, both armies were reduced to rations of beans and they were a life saver. Beans were in everybody's mouth. Before a month shall have passed "Bean" will be in everybody's mouth in and near Wauseon—not as a life saver but as a money saver.

"Konx Ompax"

Thomas Jefferson Hogg, the humorist, once proved beyond a doubt that an old fragment of classic jargon still preserved a certain magical power to soften the savage breast.

One day, as he walked near Covent Garden, an Irish laborer fanned Hogg had pushed him, and turned upon the young Oxonian, who was alone, with angry abuse. A number of bystanders quickly gathered to see what promised to be a row.

Hogg turned upon the Irishman. "I have put my hand into the hamper," he began, with calm severity; "I have looked upon the sacred barley; I have eaten out of the drum; I have drunk, and was well pleased; I have said 'Konx ompax, and it is satisfied.'"

"Have you, sir?" said the Irishman, thoroughly mystified and appeased.

A woman in the crowd said, "Now, Pat, what have you had?" Others called out, "What is it Paddy has had?" Hogg turned solemnly away, and left the bewildered Irishman to get out of his scrape as best he could.
